the Utah Utardian

July 22, 2015

The Tom Kleinschnitz 30th Adventure Bound Anniversary issue July 22, 1985 – Tom Says:

"If you're worried about drowning, why would you ask someone to throw you an anchor?"

************

July 22, 2015

It is expected that Adventure Bound's CEO Thomas Kleinschnitz will make a major pay raise announcement on this historic evening. The Utardian has learned through reliable sources that Adventure bound will more than triple its current pay scale for river guides to $500/day on the river and $250/day for warehouse and screwing around time.

In addition Kleinschnitz will announce a new method for selecting Trip leaders (TL). Beginning August 1, 2015 TL's will be selected through cage fighting. Using this method all guides on a trip will be put in a cage with a male Eastern gorilla. The last animal standing will be designated TL, and will also receive all gratuities from trip guests.

**********

July 22, 2012

At a meeting of the Utah Guides and Outfitters Adventure Bound's Tom Kleinschnitz explained how AB takes advantage of the local commercial vehicle weigh station at Loma on I70 to save money by weighing in food portions for AB's river trips. Tom said: We run through and record the weight of each vehicle, then drive them back to the yard and put a sample meal in it, go back and weigh it again. If it comes within government parameters and the company profit protocol then we know our portions are just right. CDOT, Colorado's transportation agency is considering giving Tom its prestigious leaning shovel award. But a spokesman said it is a little tiring and creates long lines at the scales, so there is a down side.

July 22, 2010

On this date Tom required AB Cataract Canyon guides to improve the North Wash take out by carrying 15 – 80 pound bags of Portland cement in their boats to shore up the boat take out ramp. Kleinschnitz said he got the idea by watching John Weisheit carry little bags of river sand down to the Glen Canyon Dam and dumping them over the edge in a symbolic gesture. "Just like John, we leave the cement in the bag, that way it doesn't just wash away."

**********

July 22, 1995

On this date several close associates reported that Mr. Kleinschnitz has a sort of affinity for power female figures named Ann. A company record review indicated indeed, that Kleinschnitz had developed very close relationships with Dinosaur Monument's Ann Excel and the director of Utah Guides and Outfitters Ann Payne.

In a related story it is reported that the Utah Guides and Outfitters organization has banned Mr. Kleinschnitz from using microphones at all future silent auctions and banquets.

***********

30th Anniversary Awards

Sexiest Employee: Leo Best driver:

Best Ranger:

Best Customer:

Biggest Tipper:

Best Séance:

BEST OWNER:

